ARTHUR WOODS AT TASK

Conference on Unemployment Will Get Help of National Council of Catholic Men.WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—The national conference on unemployment to-morrow will start to whip into shape a general programme of permanent measures designed to combat involuntary idleness throughout the country and effect the return to normal of the nation's business and commerce.Various subcommittees are scheduled to meet to-morrow and the full conference is to reconvene Tuesday.
While some of the committees have virtually decided upon their recommendations for permanent measures, it is the opinion of conference officials that at least a week will be occupied in the study of the country's economic problems before action is taken upon the complete programme.Upon reconvening the subcommittees are to receive a report from the executive secretaries setting forth the progress made toward relief of the unemployment situation under the emergency measures adopted by the conference.

Report on Work Accomplished.

The report, made public to-night, said:
The predominant object of the conference was to recommend and organize measures to meet the emergency situation during the winter.
The preliminary recommendations and organization plans have had the following response in the seven days since their issue:1. Mayor's emergency committees have been created and are actively at work in thirty-one cities on the lines of the conference plan of coordination of effort of all sections of the community, with more than a score of other cities reporting that organization is in process.2. Conference have been held during the last week by the President, Secretary Hoover and members of the conference with the heads of the great national industries, including railways, coal and shipping, from which have resulted definite steps undertaking to meet the emergency in many practical directions.3. The active participation of the great national commercial employment associations has been assured in definite organization of their branches throughout the country to assist the Mayor and to meet the situation generally. The United States Chamber of Commerce, the National Manufacturers Association, various regional and State associations have actively entered into the problem of unemployment and provision of work for the unemployed and assistance to the State and municipal authorities.

Cities Plan Public Works.

4. A number of cities have undertaken steps for the immediate advancement of local public works and for definite advancement of construction work in the country. Steps taken in this direction have been formally reported from eight cities.5. An office has been set up and is at work in Washington under Col.
Arthur Woods to continue the advance and coordination of national, State and municipal agencies under the general direction of the unemployment conference.6. As the result of experience gained in organization throughout the country during the last week and of suggestions received from many quarters, a large amount of material is now available for further development of emergency measures.

Industrial Points to Come Up.

Vital questions affecting the industrial welfare of the nation will be up for the consideration of the conference. Committees already have shaped recommendations involving readjustment of wages and prices, the open shop, repeal of the Adamson act and a declaration in favor of the railway funding bill.Other subjects to be studied by the committees include foreign trade, agriculture and the relation of credit to the country's economic structure.
Announcement of a programme of cooperation with Governors of States and Mayors of cities in meeting the employment emergency was made to-night by the National Council of Catholic Men.
Local organizations of the council throughout the country and societies affiliated with it have been requested to help by forming committees in every diocese and parish.MAINTENANCE SKIMPED TO MAKE RAIL PROFITSExecutives Say Savings Must Be Spent Later On.WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—On practically complete reports of business on main line railroads in August the Association of Railway Executives finds betterment in earnings on the country's transportation system has been due to skimping of expenditures on maintenance work, both on road beds and equipment.
A statement to-day said:"Mainly by virtue of this reduction, which represents in a large measure the failure to expend money which must later be put into the properties, the railroads in August of this year were able to show a net operating income of $90, 300,000. Had they spent the same amount for maintenance during that month that they spent for the same purpose in August, 1920, they would have had this August an operating deficit of $50,500,000."Total expenditures by class one railroads for August, 1921, on maintenance were estimated at $152,000,000, or 43 per cent. less than maintenance expenditures of August, 1920.OTISVILLE TO INCORPORATE.
Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Oct. 9.—By a vote of 54 to 31 at a special election yesterday the village of Otisville, Orange county, decided to incorporate. An election of village officials will be held in a few days.JAPAN'S MOTIVES BASED ON PEACE, LEADERS SAY

but there was no authority with which to negotiate for the purpose.Japan has accordingly been compelled to follow precedent in international law in occupying a few points in the province until a legitimate Government might be established in Russia. This procedure is due to the duty of the Government to protect the subjects of its own country and to keep the prestige of the State intact, and is of course a different thing from the maintenance of troops in Vladivostok and district.5. It is unthinkable that the United States, a country whose traditional policy is one of justice, humanity and peace, and which has friendly relations with Japan, should assume a hostile attitude toward her vital interests. If the Government and people of the United States fully understand Japan's legitimate interests and her ardent aspirations for the world's peace, especially for the peace of the Pacific and the Far East, and if with similar aspirations the United States sincerely exchange views with Japan, I believe that the Pacific and Far Eastern problems will be solved in a manner compatible with the interests and honor of both countries.

Questions Submitted to Kato.

The questions addressed by me to his Excellency Admiral Baron Kato, Imperial Minister of the Navy, were as follows:1. In view of the fact that the imperial empire of Japan is at peace with the other nations of the world, do you believe that the policy of the Japanese Government in setting aside 31 per cent. of its budget appropriations for the support of the navy is advisable?2. Would the abandonment of the "Eight-Eight" construction plan, decided on by your department, expose the imperial empire to the possible danger of an attack from the navies of all the nations?3. Would you care to say whether the reports that under the direction of the imperial Japanese navy, certain Japanese possessions in the Pacific (notably the Bonin Islands) and territory mandated to Japan have been actually fortified (or are to be) are justified by the facts?4. Do you regard the assignment by the United States Government of its most important sea units as involving any menace to Japanese interests in Asiatic or Pacific waters?5. Do you favor the negotiation of agreements between the most important sea powers of the world, as suggested by President Harding of the United States Government, and to what extent should it be carried out?

Secretary Kato's Response.

The replies made by the Secretary of the Imperial navy were as follows:
1. The Japanese Government, and people yield to none in wishing peace.
Obviously, however, all countries, irrespective of their national resources, must first and foremost see to their self-preservation. Lacking the means of self-protection, a country must exist at the mercy of other countries, and such existence would be precarious indeed.Japan prides herself on a history of over two thousand five hundred years of perfect independence and her people are conscious of the great responsibility which that precious heritage lays upon their shoulders.The Imperial navy, while by no means preparing against any particular country, cannot lose sight of its paramount duty of protecting the nation against possible foreign aggression. That is the sole motive and aim of the naval policy of Japan. That our naval appropriation for the current year had to amount to the high figure of 500,000,000 yen is much to be regretted, but it was necessitated by the requirements of national security.2. As stated above, the Imperial navy has no imaginary enemy in view and its function is purely defensive.
But for the purposes of efficient defence due regard must always be had to the naval strength which other Powers are able to send to the Far East. From that standpoint it would be clearly imprudent for the Japanese navy to alter its eight-eight programme of construction without regard to other navies.3. Fortifications on the Bonin Islands are now in course of construction, but they are not under the jurisdiction of the navy, but that of the army. No fortifications have been erected or are under contemplation on the islands assigned to Japan under the system. It is prohibited by the Versailles Treaty to fortify these islands.4. The despatch by the United States of a powerful fleet to the Pacific is not a matter for Japan to pass any criticism upon.5. It goes without saying that Japan would welcome a naval agreement among the naval Powers. The Japanese navy will adopt a most fair and just attitude at the Washington conference and will not spare its heartiest cooperation in order to help attain the lofty aim the President has in view.

Statement by the Premier.

Takaishi Hara, the Premier of the Japanese Government and the head of the Seiyu-kai party, which has been in power since September, 1913, expressed the desire to make a statement for THE NEW YORK HERALD without replying directly to questions. His statement is as follows:"In regard to the Pacific convention and the armament limitation the time is not yet mature enough to warrant publication of the Government plan beyond what has already been published.
You may, however, emphasize the fact that the Japanese Government is determined to attend the proposed conference with all sincerity because the realization of the conviction that the realization of armament limitation is really a broad step toward the promotion of the peace and welfare of the world.
The maintenance of peace in the Far East has been the constant aim of the Japanese nation. It is true that Japan has sometimes laid herself open to misunderstandings in the estimation of foreign Powers in regard to her policy toward the Far East, but since the establishment of the present ministry the country's attitude has been conspicuously peaceful."Viscount Taka-kira Kato, one of the leaders of the Kenmei-kai party, which is opposed to the Hara administration, as well as one of the most influential men in Japan, replied to questions submitted to him with extreme frankness. Viscount Kato, who did not hesitate to express his disapproval of the policy of the Government, was Minister of Foreign Affairs in the Sanoji Cabinet and as such negotiated the treaty with China, which has been described as the "twenty-one points holdup.""No weakness must be shown at the Washington conference by the representatives of Japan," he said, "if the respect of the world is to be held."Asked as to what he attributed foreign criticism of policies Viscount Kato replied that to some extent it was due to hostile propaganda dictated by jealousy and envy or trade ambitions, the misapplied influence of millionaires and the timidity of Japanese politicians (obviously the Hara ministry) who had not made any effort to correct the erroneous impressions regarding Japanese ambitions.Viscount Kato displayed considerable asperity in denouncing the protest of the Chinese Government against the "twenty-one points agreement," all of which it had signed with the exception of group 5, on the advice of the United States Government, because that commitment would have given Japan political as well as economic control over China.There is no such thing as the twenty-one points," said Viscount Kato, "and if the critics will take the trouble to read the treaty which the Chinese Government signed at Peking on May 25, 1915, they will immediately perceive their error."Replying to questions addressed to him, Junnosuke Inoue, the governor of the Imperial Bank of Japan, expressed the opinion that despite "natural controversies over political and

Japan's Attitude Analysed

IN another article, to be published to-morrow, Mr. Seibold discusses what he has found to be the real attitude of Japan toward the United States as a result of the Far Eastern problems.
The facts that he developed in his quest for information explain the agitation in Japan when President Harding issued the invitations to the armament conference.diplomatic affairs which are not of concern to the ordinary citizen, the business relations between the United States and Japan are constantly expanding and bringing the two nations closer."

Baron Shibusawa's Views.

Baron Ei-ich Shibusawa is almost as well known in the United States as he is in his own country. At 82 he is sturdy, vigorous, one of the pioneers in modern business methods and an ardent friend of the United States.
When I asked him what influences had contributed to the impairment of relations between the United States and Japan, he said:"Well, I think the policy of Japan toward China had a good deal to do with it. Perhaps because Japan has not made her position exactly clear, possibly because her critics do not want to understand it. There are two groups in Japan which hold opposite views regarding China; one favors the attitude of Big Brother; the other is what you Western people might call an aggressive group desirous of exploiting instead of developing China.
I believe there are more people in the first group than in the second.""China has stood still while Japan has learned from Europe and America, and all of her tendencies are progressive. The Chinese have been led by bad advisers to despise and envy us. Certain elements in China have resorted to calumnies against Japan designed to create suspicion about every Japanese proposal.""There is no question that the immigration question in California has caused friction between the United States and Japan. The early emigrants from Japan to the United States did not go there because they wanted to go but were invited by the Americans. It was perfectly natural that the Japanese then began to emigrate to the United States in large numbers until they aroused the resentment of the trades union leaders and politicians. That resentment has been both senseless and unreasonable, and has caused our people to keenly resent, because for sixty years America was our good friend. I hope that out of the Washington conference there will come some mutual confidence and respect which dishonest politicians and newspapers will not be able to destroy."Admiral Baron Uriu, who was a fellow student of Secretary of War Weeks at Annapolis, and who returned in August from a reunion of his class, was extremely optimistic when I talked to him about the Washington conference."Such conferences bring leaders of nations together," he said, "and give them an opportunity for getting acquainted and of acquiring first hand knowledge of each other's ideas and aspirations. I believe every thoughtful man in the world appreciates the
